INTRODUCTION OF NEW TEACHERS

Welcome to EHIME University!

MAHENDER GAKKURA

Hi, my name is Mahender and I'm from Hyderabad – an old city in south India.

I grew up eating curry almost every day, but definitely not three times a day as we usually don't eat curry for breakfast in India. You may wonder, curry with naan or rice? While in north India, curry is eaten with naan, but in the south we have it with rice.

There are many languages spoken in India. The official language of my state is called Telugu and the letters look like this – కవటతప గజడదబ

South India is hot. It gets over 46°C in summer. It's usually sunny every day in India except for the rainy days. During the rainy season, we used to receive a lot of rain. However, lack of rainfall in the recent years made many people from villages move to big cities. So, Indian cities are heavily populated. From agriculture being the main source of economy, there are various new industries which are now the back bone of Indian economy – Information Technology (IT) is one of them. Learning languages is the way of my life. I speak five and I'm hungry to learn more languages. At school, I played Kabaddi and basketball. If you are interested to learn Kabaddi, I can teach you how to play.

MEGAN ELLIS

Hi everyone, my name is Meg. Originally I come from Brisbane, Queensland in Australia. It's a lovely part of the world with great weather, and beautiful beaches and National Parks nearby. Last year I lived in Gifu, and really enjoyed exploring the prefecture on the weekends. My favorite places there were Takayama and Gujo Hachiman. I came to Matsuyama in March this year.

In my free time I especially love walking, so this is a great place to live. The city is so pretty, and I'm looking forward to seeing more of Ehime and Shikoku. My other interests include watching movies (especially action movies!) and reading history, science and psychology. Japan has a really interesting history and I love learning about it. Dancing is fun too, and a great way to relieve stress!

I love teaching English because of the wonderful people I meet. Talking to my students is always interesting for me, so please say hello when you see me – don't be shy!

MUTSUKO NAGASAKI

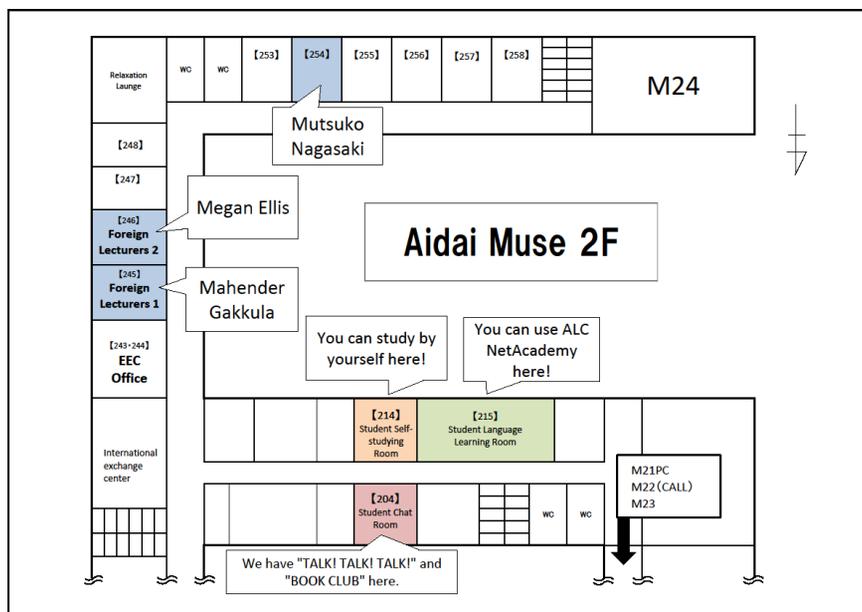

Hi, I'm Mutsuko Nagasaki. The kanji of my first name is 睦子 and it can be translated as a "friendly child (person)" in English. I think I'm very friendly, as my name says.

I came to Matsuyama just a few months ago from Kasukabe, in Saitama. It is known as the city where the famous Crayon Shinchan is living. But I'm originally from Wakayama and grew up there. So I can speak "Kansai-ben (dialect)," besides standard Japanese and English. (Now, I'm interested in learning Korean.)

I think that Matsuyama and Wakayama have a lot of things in common, such as delicious oranges, fresh seafood, and spas (Onsen), which makes me feel very comfortable living here. In addition, I'm a big fan of the novel, "Saka no Ue no Kumo" by Shiba Ryotaro. I already visited the Saka no Ue no Kumo Museum and the birthplace of the Akiyama brothers in the past few months. Anyway, I'm very happy to be living in Matsuyama. But above all, I'm so excited to be working at Ehime University and learning English with all of you.

Finally, I lived and studied in Toronto for a year and in Philadelphia for two years. If you are interested in studying in North America or if you have any questions about studying English, please feel free to come to my office and talk to me. You know, I'm very friendly!
