

English C Course Semester 2 2002

Theme: Story of American Music

Lecturer's name: Ron Murphy

Course objectives:

- : to gain an understanding of various genres of American music, and the social and cultural conditions from which each genre emerged
- : to develop speaking skills in the areas of informal debate
- : to develop listening skills
- : to improve reading fluency

Course content:

Students will be expected to

- : interpret English in spoken and written media, and to grasp the main ideas
- : participate in discussions with classmates

Information for students:

This course should appeal to students who are interested in American history, particularly the major social, political and cultural movements that gave birth to various music genres. A considerable amount of information will be presented.

Textbook/materials:

The Story of American Popular Music. Herman Bartelen, MacMillan Language House.

Evaluation:

Participation in group discussions	35%
Demonstrated effort in the reading and listening activities	35%
Quizzes	30%

English Education Center, Nihon University

科目番号 501